Kevin Stone : The Christian Conservative Coloring Book before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Christian Conservative Coloring Book:

Also the overall quality of the book is fairly cheap.5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Pat Robertson and His Friends ReduxBy Foster CorbinTHE CHRISTIAN CONSERVATIVE COLORING BOOK by Kevin Stone is the third in a series published by Garrett County Press noted for its sometimes edgy and always unique publications. The formula is that the artist takes stupid comments, gives the source of the material, and then illustrates the quotation. The subject of the first book was George Bush; the second in the series highlighted Pat Robertson and his friends. Herein lies the problem. While I do not have that book in front of me, at least eight and perhaps ten of the twenty-two illustrations included here have already been published in the prior Robertson book so over a third of this material is recycled. There really is no excuse on the part of the artist for using this old material. Certainly the people included here-- Stone adds Sean Hannity, Louisiana Senator David Vitter, Ann Coulter, Rush Limbaugh, Daniel Henninger, Bill O'Reilly, James Dobson and Sarah Palin to the warmed-over Robertson-- make outrageous comments on a daily basis so there surely is no dearth of material had the artist been so inclined to look for it. Sarah Palin, for instance, is running over with quotable silly comments, as Tina Fey of "Saturday Night Live" has proven so wonderfully. The only quotation used and illustrated by Stone in this book is Palin's "I think God's will has to be done in unifying people and companies to get that gas line built, so pray for that." Mackie Blanton's essay from the previous Robertson book is reprinted as well. If you are not familiar with the previous Robertson spoof, you will find this book very funny. For the rest of us, it is a real disappointment.

The Christian Conservative Coloring Book, an update of the Pat Robertson Coloring Book, invites readers to therapeutically take a crayon to their favorite conservative wingnuts, including: Sarah Palin, Bill O'Reilly, Sean Hannity and Rush Limbaugh. As the conservatives here hold nothing back in their outrageous provocations in service to selling their latest book or energy drink, Kevin Stone similarly holds nothing back in his portrayal of a movement running on self-righteous cynicism.
